

Father Philipp G. Renczes is professor in systematic theology at the Pontifical Gregorian University and an invited professor in historical theology at the Patristic Institute Augustinianum. Fr. Renczes was Brenninkmeijer-Werhahn lecturer at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem in 2004. Since 2011, Father Renczes has been the director of the Cardinal Bea Centre for Judaic Studies at the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome.

Rabbi Fred Morgan was a lecturer in Religious Studies at the University of Bristol in the U.K., specialising in the religions of India, before entering Leo Baeck College in London to study for the rabbinate. Ordained as rabbi in 1984, Rabbi Morgan served North West Surrey Synagogue in England for 13 years. Here in Melbourne, he took up the role of Senior Rabbi of Temple Beth Israel in 1997, "retiring" to the role of Rabbi Emeritus in 2013. He is an Hon Fellow in the Faculty of Theology and Philosophy, Australian Catholic University. His main rabbinic interests are the ways of Midrash, Jewish thought through the ages, social justice and interfaith dialogue.
